

BEYOND MEASURE – PART 1: RECONCILIATION

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 2020

Maybe you've been aware that society has been inundated with information and messages about social justice and racial equality. Both are very important matters to address but perhaps there is a bigger message that gets lost in the midst of it all. What if the path of reconciliation is a better path to choose and pursue? Is it possible to reconcile a broken past and a broken present for a better future?

READ 2 CORINTHIANS 5:11-21

- How might approaching relationship with others out of responsibility to God be different than how many people tend to do so?
- What does it mean to you that Jesus died for everyone?
- What does it mean to see others from a human point of view? What might Paul be comparing that to & how is the alternative different?
- From what viewpoint do you see Jesus?
- How would you describe/define reconciliation?
- If reconciliation literally means “bringing into harmony” why is that important in relationship with God?
- How did Jesus reconcile humankind to God? How does it impact you that God no longer holds your sins against you?
- If reconciliation literally means “bringing into harmony” why is that important in relationship with others?
- How do you see others who don't look like you?
- How do people who don't look like you, experience you?
- How should people who don't look like you, experience you?
- What next step will you take to pursue reconciliation as the better path in relationship with God and others?
